This issue of Patterns was, quite literally, 100 years in the making. I want to start off with a sincere thank you to all the listeners, viewers, donors, engineers, academics, volunteers, and staff members that got us to this milestone! It truly is a remarkable accomplishment we should all share in together.

For this month’s issue, we are including a special insert to help celebrate. I hope you will proudly display the poster to show your part in getting us here and helping us continue to bring public media to our community into the next century.

This month also marks the debut article from Katie Buzard, who has joined the team to write in-depth articles about our history. I think you will learn a lot, as I did, about our early days of WILL (WRM at the time). And I highly recommend reading the extended version of her article on our WILL 100 webpage. It is always humbling to be reminded of the innovative technological advancements that brought us here.

As is laid out in the extended article, our organization has always been able to meet the moment thanks to the generosity of donors who believe in our vision for the future of media. If you are able to make a 100th anniversary gift this month to help us continue to innovate and fulfill our important mission, we would truly be honored. You can make a gift in support of our 100th anniversary at willgive.org.

Thanks again for your support. We wouldn’t be here without friends like you.

*Unfortunately, the Roman numerals representing the year of this publication was not accurate. It has been changed to reflect that Patterns is finishing up its 47th year.
When WILL (then WRM) first came on the air in 1922, the American public, tired of the serious issues that consumed them during the war and bolstered by their newfound economic dominance, was restless and ready to be entertained.

In the early 1920s, the technology of radio was just beginning to enter people’s homes. Developed gradually over the course of the late 1800s, radio had primarily been used to contact ships out at sea and was an invaluable military tool during World War I. In 1920 the Westinghouse Electric Company started the first commercial radio station, KDKA, in Wilkinsburg, Pennsylvania, in an effort to build a market for their radio sets. By the spring of 1922, the radio craze had fully taken hold, and sales of radio sets, parts, and accessories totaled $60 million that year.

Universities were naturally at the forefront of early radio broadcasting as their physics and engineering departments experimented with transmitters and receivers. The electrical engineering department at the University of Illinois was no different and had acquired an experimental radio license from the Federal Radio Commission in the summer of 1920, operating under the call signal 9XJ. Experimenting with crystal receivers and other radio apparatuses, the department began transmitting athletic scores to other radio amateurs and planned to add music. However, in December 1921 a government ruling mandated that stations making broadcasts for the general public acquire a Limited Commercial License.

After acquiring the necessary license on March 28, 1922, the university’s radio station, WRM (or “We Reach Millions”), went on the air for the first time on Thursday, April 6, at 8:30 pm. On that storied night, four men gathered around a 50-watt vacuum tube in the university’s electrical engineering laboratory and broadcast a 30-minute program that covered Illini baseball and track, stories from the Daily Illini, and brief lectures on “Turning Cream into Gold” and “The Value of Parks for Towns of Illinois.” Their broadcast could apparently be heard within a 500-mile radius of the Urbana campus.

Throughout this centenary year, we will bring you monthly articles that celebrate WILL’s 100 years of making waves. We hope the stories provide historical insight into our past, present, and future. To read the full version of this article, visit will.illinois.edu/WILL100.
Burns: The revolutionary life of Benjamin Franklin

Ken Burns’ two-part documentary, Benjamin Franklin, explores the revolutionary life of one of the 18th century’s most consequential and compelling personalities, whose work and words unlocked the mystery of electricity and helped create the United States.

Franklin’s 84 years (1706-1790) spanned an epoch of momentous change in science, technology, literature, politics, and government — fields he himself advanced through a lifelong commitment to societal and self-improvement. Although his achievements brought him worldwide acclaim, they divided him from his family.

The film also paints the picture of a complex man, not without faults or contradiction. He owned and enslaved people in his middle age although he later spoke out against slavery; and he championed the expansion of white settlements onto indigenous lands while also denouncing the white men who killed native people indiscriminately. Benjamin Franklin premieres at 7 pm Monday, April 4 and 7 pm Tuesday, April 5.

Three women’s quest to fight Alzheimer’s

NOVA’s Determined: Fighting Alzheimer’s features three women at risk of developing Alzheimer’s disease, who join a groundbreaking study to try to prevent the disease. Barb, Sigrid, and Karen all had mothers with Alzheimer’s and witnessed firsthand the devastation wrought by the disease, not only on the mind and body, but on patients’ families. Now, they are participating in a major study that tracks the health and memory of thousands of people over many years, as researchers hunt for lifestyle changes and medicines that could improve all our chances and ultimately protect the brain and body from one of the world’s deadliest diseases. Determined: Fighting Alzheimer’s airs on NOVA at 8 pm Wednesday, April 6.

New murder mystery set in paradise

Scotland Yard DI Richard Poole is sent to the (fictional) Caribbean island of Sainte Marie to solve a fellow policeman’s murder in the new series Death in Paradise. Shortly after arriving, he finds himself seconded to the local police force as the dead man’s replacement. Poole proves to be a brilliant detective, solving several complex murders. He’s not quite suited to either the pace of life on the island or the heat and sand, neither of which he likes very much. He also doesn’t like seafood. That aside, the place is truly paradise. Join us for the premiere of Death in Paradise at 9:30 pm Saturday, April 9.
Players of the Central Illinois Negro League

In celebration of WILL’s centennial year, we are revisiting some of our most popular and acclaimed locally produced documentaries. This month, After Jackie: Black Baseball in the 1950s airs at 8 pm Monday, April 11 as a part of Doc-u-Monday.

Although Jackie Robinson broke baseball’s color barrier in 1947 when he made his historic Major League Baseball debut, many talented black players remained outside the majors, playing in semi-pro and Negro leagues. After Jackie: Black Baseball in the 1950s examine the nomadic life of these players and what their baseball games meant to African-American communities during the 1950s.

Through recollections from players of the time — including Josh Johnson of Springfield, Nate “Bobo” Smalls and Wilbur Adkisson of Danville, and Ernie Westfield of Urbana — the film paints a vivid picture of individuals who simply wanted to play ball. It also shows the hardships they endured on many levels for the love of the game.

The film was produced by Alison Davis and Rob Schober and is narrated by Roger Cooper.

Met Opera by Black composer featured

Great Performances at the Met celebrates the Met’s first performance of an opera by a Black composer in Fire Shut Up in My Bones. Met Opera Music Director Yannick Nézet-Séguin conducts Grammy-winning jazz musician and composer Terence Blanchard’s adaptation of Charles M. Blow’s moving memoir. The opera tells the story of a young man’s journey to overcome a life of trauma and hardship. Fire Shut Up in My Bones premieres on Great Performances at the Met at 8 pm Friday, April 1.

Father Brown returns for new set of mysteries

Inspired by the stories of GK Chesterton, Father Brown follows a Catholic priest who has a knack for solving mysteries in his English village. Mark Williams reprises his role as the titular character in season 9, in which the Cotswolds’ own charismatic clergyman sleuth is unusually busy with a new string of investigations, including a murder at Lady Felicia’s New Year Masked Ball. Season 9 of Father Brown, which celebrates the program’s 100th episode, kicks off at 8 pm Thursday, April 7.

The struggles, joys of freedom after lockup

Searching for Justice: Life After Lockup focuses on the challenges people who have spent years behind bars encounter after release — from reconnecting with family, to finding work and housing, to staying out of prison or jail. It features the struggles and successes of four formerly incarcerated individuals as they navigate their return to society. The hour-long special is hosted by PBS NewsHour’s chief correspondent Amna Nawaz. Searching for Justice: Life After Lockup airs at 9 pm Wednesday, April 13.

New series features female detective duo

Luna and Sophie features Luna Kunath and Sophie Pohlmann, who work together to solve crimes in Potsdam, Berlin’s picturesque little sister. They are best friends and polar opposites. Luna is strong-willed but her penchant for naivety gets her into trouble. Sophie seems more mature, but her desire for harmony and fairness can be her weakness. The team is led by Bernhard Henschel alongside Officers David Grünbaum and Christoph Westermann, medical examiner Werner Vense, and forensics expert Thomas Brandner. Season 1 of Luna and Sophie, which is in German with English subtitles, premieres at 11 pm Sunday, April 3.

April 3:

Connections: Muslim Culture in America Today, Claiming Space, Creating Connection

Connections looks at contemporary Muslim culture in America through the lens of its dynamic host, Mariam Sobh, a Muslim journalist and stand-up comedian. The program, while often funny and entertaining, provides a critical look at how American Muslims have been represented in the culture, and how narratives are changing as young Muslims take control of their own stories.
Programs commemorate Earth Day

This month, we present several programs in conjunction with Earth Day, a global observance of issues of environmental concern.

- Join conservation scientist Dr. M. Sanjayan for a global environmental health check of seven of Earth’s bellwether biomes in Changing Planet. From the Arctic to the Amazon, these vulnerable habitats are changing. Changing Planet airs at 7 pm Wednesday, April 20.

- Scientists say adverse weather resulting in death and destruction is the result of climate change caused by humans. Illinois Public Media environmental reporter Tinisha Spain takes a closer look at Illinois now and in the future. State of Change airs at 7:30 pm Thursday, April 21.

- The Trick is a conspiracy thriller and cautionary tale that tells the story of the real-life 2009 Climategate scandal, when a media storm undermined confidence in the science of climate change. The Trick airs at 9 pm Friday, April 22.

- Scientists explore the impact of climate change and what could happen if global warming exceeds 1.5 degrees in Climate Change – The Facts. Discover how the latest innovations and technology are posing potential solutions and what individuals can do to prevent further damage at 9 pm Wednesday, April 27.

Branagh featured in popular crime drama

In this award-winning crime drama, Kenneth Branagh stars as existential detective Kurt Wallander, who must battle his own demons as he works to solve a series of bizarre crimes in southern Sweden.

Follow Inspector Kurt Wallander as he struggles against a rising tide of violence in the seemingly sleepy backwaters in and around Ystad in beautiful southern Sweden. Brilliantly acted and visually dazzling, Wallander is based on the bestselling Swedish crime novels by Henning Mankell. The popular series returns at 9 pm Thursday, April 28.

Remembering Holocaust survivors through their music

When the death camps and ghettos of Europe were liberated at the end of World War II, a psychologist from Chicago visited former prisoners and recorded dozens of interviews. David Boder’s recordings are among the earliest testimonies from Holocaust survivors. Unheard for decades, a long-missing reel of songs has been rediscovered, offering a haunting document of the horrors of the Holocaust. We Remember: Songs of Survivors airs at 7 pm Thursday, April 26.

From calf to king, one hippo’s story

Nature tells an incredible story of a giant hippo bull. His story spans 35 years — from being a small, vulnerable hippo calf trying to find his place in a world among giants, to how he survived the cruel blows nature handed out to him. Such a story is normally hidden from human eyes and almost always misunderstood because it happens beneath the water and under cover of darkness. However, Hippo King reveals the secretive nature of a fascinating, clever, and highly sensitive large mammal in a character-driven, intimate story. Don’t miss Hippo King on Nature at 7 pm Wednesday, April 6.
Student journalists get national attention

Two student journalists have been honored in the national 2021-2022 Hearst Journalism Awards Program in the audio news category. The students submitted two stories for the competition: one spot-news story and one four-minute feature.

Carolina Garibay, Illinois Student Newsroom senior producer, placed sixth in the competition. Her longer multimedia feature focused on challenges dual-language teachers and their students face in online learning (listen at go.illinois.edu/CG-teaching). Garibay’s spot news story focused on a local march for women’s rights (go.illinois.edu/activists). In addition, she qualifies to compete in the upcoming Hearst National Audio Championship, an on-site competition to vie for the title of top audio journalist in the country.

Vivian La, a student senior producer last year, tied for 17th place. Her longer feature focused on the local Asian American community speaking out about racism (go.illinois.edu/VL_racism). Her spot news story is about a campaign to help formerly incarcerated people (go.illinois.edu/VL_campaign).
Independent filmmaking and social justice

Reel Midwest — Illinois Public Media’s independent film series that endeavors to find and showcase the best feature, documentary, and short films from Illinois and across the Midwest — is taking on a new form. The Reel Midwest Film Festival series will focus on bringing these powerful films out into the community to provide a space to examine the role of independent film and its connection to movements for social justice.

The first installment in the series will feature ’63 Boycott by Kartemquin Films at 7 pm Tuesday, April 19 for a public screening at the Spurlock Museum of World Cultures. The event is open to the public; no tickets or reservations needed.

On Oct. 22, 1963, more than 250,000 students boycotted the Chicago Public Schools to protest racial segregation. The film ’63 Boycott connects this forgotten story of one of the largest Northern civil rights demonstrations to contemporary issues around race, education, and youth activism.

“The film shows young people protesting inequality in our schools over 50 years ago,” said Gordon Quinn, director and founding member of Kartemquin Films. “It also begins and ends with today’s young people protesting the same kind of unequal treatment. It is the story of why and how boycotts happen.”

The fight for access to quality public education in the United States is as old as public education itself. Organized movements to address the teaching-and-learning gap in public schools here in Champaign-Urbana as well as Chicago are active and ongoing. The Reel Midwest Film Festival will bring Illinois students, filmmakers, community organizers, and the broader local public together for a discussion around this historic and current struggle.

“We have chosen films that raise historical as well as contemporary issues followed by a discussion to connect audiences to the filmmaker, local activists who are engaged with the issues, and local resources,” said Kimberlie Kranich, director of community content and engagement at Illinois Public Media. “The event is designed to allow for plenty of time for audience interaction.”

Illinois Public Media is collaborating with the Spurlock Museum of World Cultures and the Media & Cinema Studies Department in the College of Media at Illinois — in particular, Professor Angela Aguayo and Lecturer Jon Knipp — to give students a chance to learn more about the role of film festivals in the community space as well as the societal impacts of filmmaking.
Help us raise $100,000 to celebrate 100 years

In honor of our 100th anniversary, we hope to raise $100,000 by April 27. As with our other recent spring fund drives, we plan to limit the on-air pledge portion to just a few days.

If you make a gift right now at will.illinois.edu/will100, it will count toward our 100th anniversary goal. And when you make your gift, you can select one of our special WILL 100 thank you gifts, including a new coffee mug to go along with our special Classic Mornings WILL 100 coffee blend from Page Roasting Company in Champaign.

2021 annual report: Get it before it’s gone

April is our birthday month, and our 100th anniversary has given us a wonderful reason to pause and take stock of where we have been and what we have accomplished in our first century. It has also been a great reason to look to the future and reaffirm where we are going.

April is also traditionally the time of the year we look back on the previous year’s accomplishments through our annual report. 2021 was a powerful fusion of news and information; community journalism and educational outreach; and arts, music and entertainment that perfectly encapsulates who we are here at Illinois Public Media. And as the world continues to face challenging and unprecedented times, it is clear public media at the local level has a responsibility to give a sense of place, strike a balance, and provide trusted resources to navigate it all.

The 2021 Annual Report can be viewed and downloaded at will.illinois.edu/about/annualreports. If you would like to receive a print copy of our annual report, please email will-membership@illinois.edu. To view a complete audited financial statement, please visit will.illinois.edu/about/compliance.

“I grew up in Dixon, Illinois, in northwestern Illinois in the 1950s and ’60s. WILL was hard to receive on the radio. But everywhere we drove, the dial was always set to AM 580. My father loved that station. We’d have discussions about his hogging the radio and not allowing me to listen to WLS! Saturday afternoons were his favorite. He worked retail, and he would take a portable radio to his open office and listen to the Texaco Metropolitan Opera every Saturday afternoon. People would walk by to sounds of the opera! And he would linger longer at home during his lunch hour to listen to it.”

— Mike Herzog, Bloomington, Illinois
Steinbacher named director of development

John Steinbacher has been named director of development for Illinois Public Media. Although he joined the IPM team in 2012 as membership director, his passion for public media extends back much further.

As an undergraduate in a public speaking course at the University of Illinois in 1998, the final project tasked each student with giving a speech to convince the class which not-for-profit organization should receive a donation from the class. (Each student donated $15.) John recalls the result. “I am proud to say that WILL received $300 on behalf of that class based on the speech I gave in favor of supporting local public media,” he said. “While I didn’t realize it then, that was a formative moment for my future career path.”

In this new role as director of development, John oversees all fundraising operations for the organization, including annual giving, fund drives, grant applications, planned gifts, corporate support, and donor services. “Luckily we have a great team in development,” he said, “so I see my main responsibility is to ensure that everyone has the resources they need to succeed.”

And John remains committed to growing the support of public media at the local level to benefit the community at large. “Communities are better places to live when people have access to a local and independent press, a diverse offering of arts programs, and universal access to early educational resources,” he said. “Public media provides this and so much more. I want to work with our donors to connect them to projects they are passionate about and help Illinois Public Media expand its reach to new and more diverse audiences.”

“With John’s significant experience in public media, his proven fundraising experience, and his passion for Illinois Public Media, he is the perfect choice to lead our development efforts going forward,” said Executive Director Moss Bresnahan.

Of course, John also is a consumer of public media himself. He and his family love to watch Nature, Nova, and Mid-American Gardener. “I am also big on news on the radio,” he said “I really like Wait Wait … Don’t Tell Me! and The 21st. But sometimes, you just need to relax and listen to some great music with Vic on Classic Mornings!”

Sivers is new broadcasting engineer

This month, we welcome Scott Sivers, who joins the Illinois Public Media team as our new broadcasting engineer.

In this position, Scott will install, repair, and maintain TV and radio broadcast equipment at the studios and at the transmitter sites. He also may operate studio and control room equipment as required. Scott said he is excited to join the IPM team and is looking forward to getting back into TV and to new challenges that this position will provide.

“It has been more than 10 years since I worked at WCIA,” he said. “I think that there is a great opportunity here for me to expand my knowledge and keep up with the latest in TV and radio technology. Additionally, I was the lone engineer at my last station for quite some time, so it will be nice to work with other engineers and be able to discuss things with them.”

Scott has worked in radio and TV since the early 1990s, starting with Parkland College Radio (WPCD). “I also ran an electronics repair shop for about 10 years called Plug It In. I boasted that I could fix anything that you could plug in,” he said.

He is a huge fan of PBS cooking shows and likes to test the recipes in his own kitchen. “I often prepare the recipes that I have seen on Cook’s Country and America’s Test Kitchen and other shows on PBS.”
Thank you, Program Underwriters!

As WILL begins our second century of service to our community we want to thank all of our dedicated donors who have gotten us to this point. We are thrilled to celebrate our past 100 years with you and look forward to serving you for 100 more.

We hope you'll display this poster in your window with pride and show your support for WILL!

Thank you for your support and dedication to public media in central Illinois as a Friend of WILL. Your gifts have allowed us to provide our community with award-winning local journalism, high-quality entertainment, music, and education. Illinois Public Media reaches every level of our community and, because of our donors, is free and accessible to everyone.

There are many ways for you to continue to support our efforts and make a lasting impact for our next 100 years. If you are currently in a position to do so, help us celebrate WILL’s 100th anniversary by leaving a legacy of your own. Our goal is for 100 donors to invest in Illinois Public Media’s future this year and join the Donald P. Mullally Legacy Society by making an estate gift to support this station.
