march 2018 Volume XLV, Number 9

This month's issue of Patterns includes the Annual Report, where we highlight the best and brightest of 2017. I must say, it was hard to narrow down the features! The past year was an excellent time for us, and we are proud to share the rewards of our efforts.

Meanwhile, Illinois Public Media is definitely marching in like a lion. Our local favorite television show Mid-American Gardener will now include a weekly podcast, just in time for spring. It will have both favorite and new panelists as they answer your questions on specific gardening topics. Page 17 has the scoop.

An annual favorite returns on Tuesday, March 6: the WILLag All Day Outlook. We will again meet at the Beef House in Indiana. Go to page 18 for the details.

And finally, check out our latest additions to the primetime television schedule on pages 2-3. New British comedies and a detective series join the lineup in March.

Until next month, my Friends.

MISTER ROGERS' NEIGHBORHOOD®

Mister Rogers: It's You I Like, a celebrity-filled, hour-long special that premieres at 7 pm Tuesday, March 6, celebrates Mister Rogers' Neighborhood, the pioneering PBS series that premiered nationally 50 years ago and became an iconic and enduring landmark in the world of children's television and beyond. Cast members from the groundbreaking series share their personal perspectives and insights in this new production, which pays tribute to television's longest-running children's series, still broadcast on many PBS stations today. The program also features interviews with numerous celebrities who have been influenced and inspired by Fred Rogers, a modest man who always said, "I am not a teacher, I simply help children learn."

Michael Keaton, who worked as a stagehand and made appearances on the series in the 1970s, hosts the special. Judd Apatow, Joyce DiDonato, Whoopi Goldberg, Chris Kratt, John Lithgow, Yo-Yo Ma and son Nicholas Ma, Itzhak Perlman, Sarah Silverman, Esperanza Spalding and Caroll Spinney reveal their favorite memories from Mister Rogers' Neighborhood, while Joe Negri ("Handyman Negri"), David Newell ("Mr. McFeely") and Joanne Rogers, Fred's widow, share their personal stories. Also featured are performances from the archives by Tony Bennett, The Empire Brass Quintet, Hillary Hahn, Margaret Hamilton, Yo-Yo Ma and Nicholas, Wynton Marsalis, and Perlman.

The nearly 900 episodes created by Fred Rogers encompass topics that resonate to this day with adults and children alike. Favorite segments, such as a visit with Koko the Gorilla, Big Bird's appearance in the Neighborhood of Make-Believe, as well as trips to the Crayola Factory and the Radio Flyer Wagon Company, are highlighted.

Old and new series make a great March

Celebrate with Britcom Premier night

By popular demand, we're presenting a special premier night featuring three new Britcoms, plus the return of Red Dwarf, that will soon be added to our Saturday night lineup. We've heard from viewers who missed our annual Great Britcom Vote and the excitement over getting to preview new shows. So we're giving you the chance to preview new shows, and unlike previous years, all of these show will be added to the schedule. So everybody wins! David Thiel, director of programming services, said, "This is the first time in years that several new Britcoms have been offered to us. While none of them have enough episodes to remain on the schedule year-round, they'll bring us new laughs on Saturday nights."

Mum

Cathy is attempting to move on with her life after the death of her husband. Through a year of new beginnings she rebuilds her life, surrounded by her sometimes problematic family and friends.

Upstart Crow

The life of William Shakespeare before he became famous, the series shows Shakespeare as he starts to make a name for himself while also trying to be a husband and father.

Marley's Ghosts

Marley has a rare gift, she can talk to the dead. However, this gift is a mixed blessing as the ghosts she can currently communicate with sadly include her husband Adam, her lover Michael and the local vicar.

Red Dwarf

This space spoof features Dave Lister, the last human alive, and his friends, stranded three million years into deep space on the mining ship Red Dwarf.

See what's bingeworthy on Passport

WILL Passport gives you the opportunity to watch and rewatch many of your favorite PBS and WILL shows. On Sunday, March 11, we're offering a special lineup of some of the most popular shows available on WILL Passport. This includes The Great British Baking Show, Barns: An Illinois Story, Poldark, and Grantchester. So tune in, get hooked, and start binge watching!

First up at 6 pm is our favorite baking team, Mary Berry and Paul Hollywood, with The Great British Baking Show. At 7:10 pm is Barns: An Illinois Story, produced by Illinois Public Media. This EMMY-award winning documentary showcases barns in Illinois along with interviews with their owners and restorers.

Then at 8:10 pm, watch the first episode of Masterpiece Classic's smash hit Poldark. Aiden Turner stars as Ross Poldark, a soldier returning from war to find his estate in ruins and his sweetheart Elizabeth set to marry another. All three seasons of this audience favorite are available on Passport.

Finally at 9:20 pm is the Masterpiece Mystery! hit Grantchester. Reverend Sidney Chambers suspects murder, and his biggest challenge is to enlist police in the hunt for the killer.

A new detective in town

Maigret is a British television series adapted from the novels by Georges Simenon featuring his fictional French detective Jules Maigret. Played by Rowan Atkinson, the four-part series of episodes feature Chief Inspector Maigret as he investigates various crimes in 1950s Paris.

Atkinson, who found fame as Blackadder and Mr. Bean, reinvents himself for each of the two-hour episodes on Thursdays in March. "I have been a devourer of the Maigret novels for many years, and I am very much looking forward to playing such an intriguing character, at work in Paris during such a fascinating period in its history," said Atkinson.

Rock, rhythm, and doo wop

Join R&B legend Little Anthony, Sha Na Na's Jon "Bowzer" Bauman and producer TJ Lubinsky in the new My Music special, Doo Wop Generations, that reunites the original artists of Doo Wop as they pass the torch to the next generation of singers. Shot in Asbury Park, New Jersey, it's a sentimental, emotion-packed night of nostalgia. My Music searched the country to find a new generation of Doo Wop singers to pay tribute to these veteran artists as they return to the stage for a final celebration. This concert also highlights performances that tell stories about the original singers—their triumphs, challenges and eternal love for this music—and inspirational recollections from friends and loved ones. Doo Wop Generations premieres at 7 pm Saturday, March 3.

Here comes the sun

Airing at 9:30 pm Tuesday, March 13, Concert for George was held at the Royal Albert Hall in London on November 29, 2002, as a memorial to George Harrison on the one-year anniversary of his passing. Olivia Harrison and friend Eric Clapton organized this special event with George's closest friends to celebrate his life in the only way they knew how—by playing his music. The momentous evening featured George's songs and the music he loved, with performances by Paul McCartney, Ringo Starr, Eric Clapton, Tom Petty, and many more. Now this amazing event is available for the first time in high-definition.

The centre of rock 'n' roll

Watch the never-before-seen documentary Queen Rock the World, premiering at 11:30 pm Saturday, March 3. In 1977 Queen recorded their sixth album, News Of The World, which included the songs "We Will Rock You," "We Are the Champions," "Sheer Heart Attack," and "Spread Your Wings." Queen also embarked on their biggest headlining US tour with one aim: to break America. Music journalist Bob Harris and a film crew followed their journey as part of a proposed documentary that has remained incomplete and unreleased—until now. 40 years after the album and the tour, this lost documentary is pieced together for the first time, providing fascinating insights into a band that defied the odds and took the USA by storm.

Can't you hear me knocking?

On May 20, 2015, at the historic 1920s Fonda Theatre in Hollywood, California, the legendary Rolling Stones performed their entire Sticky Fingers album live in concert for the first and only time. The show celebrated the reissue of the Sticky Fingers album and was the opening night of the band's "Zip Code" tour of North America that would take place over the next two months. The intimate setting of the Fonda Theatre was in contrast to the huge stadiums in which the band would perform for the rest of the tour, making this an incredibly special occasion for those fans lucky enough to get a ticket. Featuring some of the band's greatest hits, including "Brown Sugar" and "Wild Horses," The Rolling Stones: Sticky Fingers at the Fonda Theatre airs at 8:30 pm Friday, March 9.

To Love Somebody

At 9:30 pm Saturday, March 3, watch The Bee Gees One For All Tour-Live in Australia. Recorded live in Melbourne, Australia, at the National Tennis Centre in November 1989, this concert film captures the Bee Gees' "One for All World Tour," celebrating their eighteenth studio album One. This fully restored, newly mixed and mastered show features the Gibb brothers performing tracks from as far back as their 1966 breakthrough hit "Spicks and Specks" as well as their classic seventies and eighties songs.

The wino has something to say

Jimmy Buffett: Buried Treasure at 7:30 pm Friday, March 9 will take us through the music of Jimmy's "pre-beach" years and will feature revealing stories of what got him started in music, his early struggles, his determination, and the endless days on the road perfecting his craft a performer who learned through hard work how to entertain audiences big and small. Also featured will be "live" performances from Jimmy's archives of some of his biggest hits, so we can see how his beginnings set him on the course to become one of the most joyful and successful musical entertainers of all time

New podcast for Mid-American Gardener

Lisa Bralts, director of content and strategic communications, gives us the breakdown of the new Mid-American Gardener podcast.

Who:

One expert will be featured every week for a specific, seasonal topic. Experts will include past and current panelists, as well as new voices to the Mid-American Gardener community. “The great thing about gardening is there are so many great gardeners right in your own neighborhood, and even Mid-American Gardener superfans that have watched the show for years. They have years of experience growing in zone 5, and that includes dealing with all of its little quirks from wacky weather to annoying pests. This podcast will give us the opportunity to hear from local growers just like our listeners, and to even go beyond the gardening process to canning, flower arranging, and more.”

What:

“Our local Mid-American Gardener roadshows at the farmer’s markets and our overflowing inbox show us that viewers have so many more questions that just can’t be answered in a half-hour show. Therefore, the podcast gives us the opportunity to answer that overflow of questions. Each show will be tailored to a particular gardening topic. For example, many gardeners are talking seeds right now: which varieties of vegetables and herbs will give the most bang for your buck, and how to get the seeds started in the best conditions so that you have beautiful growth for spring planting. That’s where the format of a podcast really lends itself to providing what our listeners want to hear.”

When:

Our plan is to initially have a new podcast every two weeks.

Where:

The podcast will be available on the Mid-American Gardener homepage at will.illinois.edu/midamericangardener. It will also be available in iTunes and other podcast streaming services

Why:

“The growth in podcasts over the last few years has been huge and shows us that our audience is really tailoring its listening habits to on-demand, niche topics. The call-in part of the show is already very popular, so we knew that we wanted to find a way to handle the overflow of questions we receive, and a podcast is the best way to do that.

“More importantly, my hope is to inspire someone to take the plunge and try to grow something. Gardening can be intimidating when you look at plant varieties and soil breakdowns, but it can be quite simple too. Our experts were once just beginners as well, learning from failures and experiencing the huge payoff and empowerment that comes from success. It’s very grounding to know you grew something from your own hard work. If this podcast inspires someone to try gardening, or to branch out in their gardening ambitions, then we’ve been successful.”

► The first panelist for the new podcast is a familiar voice: former Mid-American Gardener host Dianne Noland!

Kristin Walters joins Illinois Newsroom

Illinois Newsroom has hired Kristin Walters as the visiting senior engagement strategist. Walters, a native of Delaware, has lived in Illinois for 10 years. “I originally came to Champaign-Urbana to complete my MFA in creative writing, but for the last two years I have worked in marketing, communications, and community organizing,” she said.

Walters’ work with Illinois Public Media and Illinois Newsroom is a new adventure for everyone. “This is a brand-new position, so I get the chance to forge my own path. I am taking the lead on the engagement initiative of Illinois Newsroom statewide to include our partner stations in creating more public engagement with the media.

“My main goal is to go into the communities and find the most important issues for us to create content around, so the public feels that our media is serving them. This way, I can liaise between the public and journalists to build stronger bonds of trust and provide more great sources for journalists.”

Jumping into a new role is not foreign for Walters. “I worked with iVenture Accelerator, which works with U of I college of business students to help them launch their businesses. I also created Imbibe Urbana, which is responsible for the large-scale Urbana First Friday events every month.”

It’s this background that makes Walters a great asset for Illinois Newsroom. “Because I have a lot of diversity in my academic and work background,

I find it is easy to communicate with diverse groups of people. There is always some commonality to be found.

“I really believe that bringing communities together is the only way to create large-scale change. I am really glad that Illinois Newsroom is doing that for the community outside Chicago, so that their voices have the same volume as Chicago, and people outside of Illinois will start understanding that the statewide issues affect the entire state.”

This community involvement is a growing trend in public media. “My end goal is for people to hear stories and be inspired to make change in their communities. I want to go after the unheard stories deeply with the power of the station partnerships so they reach the entire state.”

Walters is thrilled to be a part of the process. “I have loved public media my whole life, and I’ve been blown away by both the kindness and the talent of the people working here. The leadership and journalists are just top-notch. It’s a great environment to work in every day.”

Welcome Kristin!

Thank you, Program Underwriters!
