July 2022 Volume XLVIII, Number 1

July marks the beginning of a new budget year at Illinois Public Media. As we often like to mention, we are a forward-funded organization, and your investment over the last 12 months has helped to put us in strong financial shape. Thank you!

Due to the generosity of the Friends of WILL, we are looking ahead to another great year. We are excited to bring you more of what you love and count on, like Broadway performances and fan-favorite dramas, as well as trusted kids' programming, and news. But we also look forward to expanding our coverage of issues affecting the local Latinx community, to reach more audiences across the state, and to enhance our already beloved classical service ... to just name a few.

Throughout our 100 years of broadcasting, WILL and the University of Illinois have a history of looking forward. In 1948, Illinois Professor of Communications Wilbur Schramm brought a loose-knit group of educational radio station managers, called the National Association of Educational Broadcasters, to Urbana to discuss their mission and how to attract funding. These discussions and subsequent conferences would go on to form the philosophical cornerstone of public broadcasting as we know it today.

The story of NAEB demonstrates a long legacy of innovation brought about by collaborations among College of Media faculty, students, and Illinois Public Media staff. I encourage you to read more in this month's WILL 100 feature (page 18) by Katie Buzard, and then visit will.illinois.edu/will100 to take an even deeper dive into our history and its broad impact.

YOUR TICKET TO THE WORLD

Historic Route 66

Hitch a ride with a young millennial Muslim American couple on a cross-country journey along historic Route 66. As they meet new friends and explore more than a dozen stops, Sebastian Robins and Mona Haydar weave a colorful story about what it means to be Muslim in America today, including American spirituality, food, technology, music, and more. The Great Muslim American Road Trip, beginning at 9 pm Tuesday, July 5, chronicles their trip. In the first episode, Life is a Highway, the couple travels from Chicago to Joplin, Missouri, including, above, a stop at Lincoln's home, where they talk with Kamau Kemayó, chair, African American Studies at the University of Illinois Springfield.

Outdoors in America

Bestselling author, podcast creator, and outdoor enthusiast Baratunde Thurston takes viewers on an adventure-filled journey in America Outdoors With Baratunde Thurston. Beginning 8 pm Tuesday, July 5, he explores the diverse array of regions across the U.S. and how those landscapes shape the way Americans work, play, and interact with the outdoors. From wilderness pilots flying "below the rim" in Idaho to coal miners turned beekeepers in Appalachia, Thurston introduces viewers to a vivid cast of characters whose outdoor lives are shaped by where they live.

Exploring the unknown

Naturalist Steve Backshall has dedicated his life to seeking out some of the most remote locations on Earth, places never seen by human eyes. Season 2 of Expedition With Steve Backshall begins at 10 pm Wednesday, July 6, as he ventures deeper into the unknown. He and his team of hand-picked experts are on a mission to discover fresh insights that could help to secure a future for the world's wildlife.

Plants around the globe

Explore more than 27 countries with Sir David Attenborough as he travels the globe to reveal the secret lives of plants. The Green Planet, beginning at 7 pm Wednesday, July 6, highlights plants' relationships with animals, humans, and the environment using pioneering camera techniques, including time-lapse photography and drones.

Happy Birthday, USA

Join us for the time-honored 42-year-tradition that puts viewers front and center for America's biggest birthday party with the greatest display of fireworks anywhere in the nation, lighting up the iconic D.C. skyline. Airing at 7 pm and again at 8:30 pm Monday, July 4, A Capitol Fourth celebrates our country's 246th birthday with musical performances by top stars from pop, country, R&B, classical, and Broadway featuring the National Symphony Orchestra under the direction of premier pops conductor Jack Everly.

Monkey hijinks galore in two specials

Join everyone's favorite monkey in new adventures airing back-to-back beginning at 7 am Wednesday, July 1. In Curious George 4: Royal Monkey, George is swapped with a royal monkey with a totally different personality. While the fun-loving George brings some much needed joy to a stuffy kingdom ruled by a stern king, Ted is puzzled by the snooty look-a-like. Next at 8:30 am, Curious George 5: Go West, Go Wild follows George and Ted as they look forward to a relaxing weekend at cousin Ginny's farm. When George accidentally causes the farm animals to escape, an improvised roundup to find the herd ensues.

'Grantchester' returns for season 7

Season 7 of Grantchester on MASTERPIECE sees Robson Green and Tom Brittney return as Detective Inspector Geordie Keating and Rev. Will Davenport. The series picks up in the long, hot summer of 1959 when wedding season is in full swing in the Cambridgeshire village. As the Rev. Davenport unites happy couples in holy matrimony, DI Keating is busy as ever investigating a range of local murder cases. When a dead body is found on a local estate, they join forces to investigate stories of lost love and family inheritance in an attempt to uncover the killer. Season 7 begins at 8 pm Sunday, July 10.

Remembering a local jazz icon: Dan Perrino

In celebration of WILL's centennial year, we are revisiting some of our most popular and acclaimed locally produced documentaries. This month, Medicare Man: Remembering Dan Perrino and Medicare 7, 8 or 9 airs at 8 pm Monday, July 18, as a part of Doc-u-Monday.

In Champaign-Urbana, the 1960s protest era left behind more than broken glass and memories of fists raised in anger. On the University of Illinois campus, the period gave birth to a novel approach to calm student unrest — the Medicare 7, 8 or 9 Dixieland jazz band, which went on to become a treasured part of the community for more than 30 years.

In 1969, music professor Perrino, along with other professors and grad students, staged an impromptu Dixieland jazz concert at the Illini Union, where students gathered in the South Lounge to protest the administrations on campus and in Washington. When the group performed, the room filled with people, and for once people weren't yelling at each other. Over the next 30 years, the group played more than 2,000 performances all over Illinois and in more than 35 states.

Produced and edited by Illinois Public Media's Tim Meyers, Medicare Man: Remembering Dan Perrino and Medicare 7, 8 or 9, pays tribute to Perrino and the band he founded, looking back at the group's history with concert footage, interviews with band members, archival photos, and excerpts of interviews with Perrino.

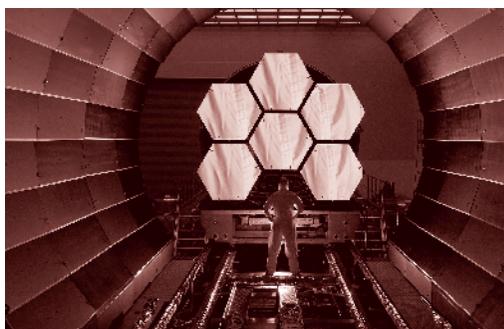

Season 2 of 'COBRA Cyberwar' premieres

In times of national emergency, a team comprising Britain's leading experts, crisis contingency planners, and the most senior politicians assemble under the name COBRA (taken from its meeting place in Whitehall's Cabinet Office Briefing Room A) to form the committee entrusted to protect the people of Great Britain. Season 2 of COBRA Cyberwar hurls us into both the corridors of power in Westminster and the eye of the storm as COBRA responds to a volatile situation in Kent while an unseen enemy strikes from the shadows. COBRA Cyberwar premieres at 9 pm Sunday, July 10.

A closer look at space: 'Are we alone?'

How did NASA engineers build and launch the most ambitious telescope of all time? Follow the dramatic story of the James Webb Space Telescope in NOVA: Ultimate Space Telescope at 8 pm Wednesday, July 13. If it works, scientists believe that this new eye on the universe will peer deeper back in time and space than ever before to the birth of galaxies, and may even be able to "sniff" the atmospheres of exoplanets as we search for signs of life beyond Earth.

Female influence in classical music featured

Airing on WILL-FM on Sundays at 1 pm, Feminine Fusion highlights the influence of women in classical music. These are the women throughout history and into the present day who create, perform, and inspire.

Composer/announcer Diane Jones of WCNY-FM in Syracuse, New York, hosts.

Women are the central, unifying focus of this series. Their influence is broad-ranging, crossing the boundaries of culture, race, and gender. Some of the people featured entered the world of the arts knowing they faced opposition. Others simply took to their chosen path, often unaware of the impact their actions would have. In every case, however, they have touched hearts and souls with their art.

POV kicks off 35th season July 11

POV, America's longest-running non-fiction series on PBS, celebrates its milestone 35th year with a slate of acclaimed, thought-provoking films airing Mondays at 9 pm beginning July 11. The award-winning anthology series will premiere 14 features with themes that include environmental justice, systemic inequity, global perspectives on motherhood, and caregiving during multiple crises.

The season opener is a stirring observational documentary on the first wave of the COVID-19 lockdown. With unprecedented access in a period of pandemic lockdown, Wuhan Wuhan documents February and March 2020 in Wuhan, China, where the coronavirus was first discovered. Going beyond the statistics and salacious headlines, frontline medical workers, patients, and ordinary citizens put a human face on the early days of the mysterious virus as they grapple with an invisible, deadly killer.

Kirsten Kleist Petersen with Maniitsoq, Greenland, in background.

In Manzanar, Diverted: When Water Becomes Dust (July 18)

three communities intersect, sharing histories of forced removal: Japanese Americans who were incarcerated at the Manzanar WWII concentration camp; Native Americans who were forced from these lands; and ranchers turned environmentalists, who were bought out by the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power. How do they come together in the present moment to defend their land and water from Los Angeles?

In Winter's Yearning (July 25) the U.S. aluminum giant Alcoa Corporation in Maniitsoq, Greenland, has been planning to build a smelting plant for years. Pictured against immense, isolating landscapes, the people await their plant and with it, the nation's possible first steps towards economic renewal and political sovereignty.

Season 5: 'The She Said Project Podcast'

Illinois Public Media has partnered with The She Said Project since 2019 to give everyday women a space to come together and share their extraordinary stories through The She Said Project Podcast.

The podcast continues to highlight the extraordinary stories of everyday women who were brave enough to share their story on a That's What She Said stage before a live audience. They continue to make us laugh, cry, and everything in between. Season 5 will highlight women from Champaign, like Julie Pryde and her hilarious, yet touching, story "Afternoon Special," as well as women like Rhoda Banks from a St. Louis show, who will share with our audience "The Rhoda Experience."

Season 5 of The She Said Project Podcast is packed with even more stories from the ever-expanding world of That's What She Said, which began in Champaign in 2013 and has so far grown to include many cities, plus virtual story-sharing showcases. Hosts Kerry Rossow, The She Said Project co-founder, and Jenette Jurczyk, national director, return to the WILL studios as they visit with some incredible women who braved the microphone and the stage. The podcast continues to reveal more about the "story behind the story" and the impact the She Said show experience has had on them and their community since.

The She Said Project believes everyone has a story to share and That's What She Said is a safe space for women to boldly share their personal stories that can inspire deeper human connection and build community. Season 5 of the podcast is now underway, with new episodes available each Friday at will.illinois.edu/shesaid or anywhere you get your podcasts. Listeners also are encouraged to subscribe wherever they listen to podcasts.

We look forward to more live shows as the program expands and grows in more communities. The next live event will be Sept. 9 in Bloomington, Illinois, with That's What She Said shows returning in 2023 to Champaign, Peoria, St. Louis, and Allentown, Pennsylvania, in addition to first-time shows in Indianapolis; Columbia, Missouri; Charlotte, North Carolina; Oregon City, Oregon, and beyond!

Making of a 100th-anniversary fanfare

A few months ago we told you about the recording of a special fanfare that was commissioned by Illinois Public Media to celebrate WILL's centennial earlier this year. Well, you can now watch a video with the performance of the fanfare in our studios and a special interview with composer Randall Reyman. Reyman explains that his inspiration for the piece came directly from the numbers associated with the frequencies of WILL's various stations.

We welcomed an ensemble of local brass musicians into our studio to record the fanfare live in front of an audience, taking us back to WILL's long tradition of creating a space for the enjoyment of live local music. We are excited to finally share this new video with you. Enjoy the fanfare, along with Reyman discussing his artistic process to create it.

Public broadcasting's roots in Urbana

By Katie Buzard

Did you know the roots of public broadcasting were cultivated here in central Illinois? While some saw radio as merely a profit machine, early radio advocates at the University of Illinois saw the technology's potential to expand upon the university's mission as a land-grant institution to make education accessible to the wider public. The dissemination of high-quality educational and cultural content to all Illinoisians has been central to WILL's mission ever since, and the conversations held at WILL and among Illinois faculty helped pave the way for the development of public media as we know it today.

In 1948, Illinois Professor of Communications Wilbur Schramm brought members of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters to Urbana to discuss the organization's mission and determine how to attract funding. Founded in 1925, the NAEB was an informal association of station managers from mostly Midwestern colleges and universities who were struggling to secure their spots on the dial amid the commercial takeover of the airwaves in the late 1920s and '30s. The NAEB had a collective vision that the radio could be an effective tool for educational outreach, but it lacked the staff and cohesion necessary to keep this vision alive. Schramm sought to change this. At this conference, he posed such questions as: "Would high-quality educational programs appeal to mass audiences?" "Where would this programming come from?" and "Who would build, pay for, and operate these educational stations?"

In July 1949, these discussions expanded into a two-week seminar at Allerton Park and Retreat Center. Schramm invited educational broadcasters from around the country to participate in the think tank, as well as politicians, commercial broadcasters, and academics and scholars from various disciplines. Known as Allerton I, the event took place during an intense prairie heatwave, which may explain why the attendees quickly tossed out Schramm's carefully planned agenda. Instead, they focused on one key question: "What is the job of educational broadcasting?" The conclusions they drew during Allerton I, and the strategies they devised during Allerton II the following summer would go on to form the philosophical cornerstone of public broadcasting.

SHARE YOUR STORY

Our 100th anniversary is more than a date; it is a once in a lifetime opportunity to share WILL's amazing story with everyone. We hope you'll join us in celebrating this centennial by sharing your own WILL stories and memories at will.illinois.edu/will100/shareyourstory.

"My daughter was doing a family history project for her college class, and she started asking for information about her great grandfather, O.B. Streeper, who was a World War II veteran. I told her to Google him because there's all kinds of stuff out there about him; he was such a colorful person. Then we stumbled across his oral history from WILL's Central Illinois World War II Stories. I always knew about my grandpa's time in the war, but I never really heard him tell stories in his own words. This was such a fun find. Thanks, Illinois Public Media!"

IPM wins regional Murrow award

Illinois Public Media has won a Regional Edward R. Murrow Award for the newsroom's live coverage of severe weather that produced at least four tornadoes in central Illinois.

"We're thrilled to be honored with a Regional Edward R. Murrow award this year — widely considered the most prestigious award given in local journalism," said Moss Bresnahan, executive director of Illinois Public Media. "This is a testament to how our team rallies to cover breaking news vital to our community. It's more than weather forecasting or storm tracking — this kind of coverage saves lives."

Reginald Hardwick

Andrew Pritchard

On Dec. 10, 2021, a historic tornado outbreak across the Midwest generated at least four tornadoes in central Illinois. The rain-wrapped tornadoes occurred hours after sunset in rural areas that lack high-speed broadband. Local meteorologist Andrew Pritchard and News and Public Affairs Director Reginald Hardwick provided over two hours of live, continuous coverage on WILL-AM 580 and WILL-FM 90.9. This coverage included storm locations and safety information until all the area tornado warnings ceased.

"This award wouldn't be possible without meteorologist Andrew Pritchard coming to our studio and being on air with us for multiple hours of coverage. He put his meteorology training and education to work for the listeners, explaining minute by minute where these tornadoes were moving through. It's emergency weather information that no weather app can provide," Hardwick said. "Later, we received emails from people who listened to our coverage in their basements or safe rooms as the storms passed over. This is why public media is an important public service."

The Radio Television Digital News Association has honored Illinois Public Media with this award for "Breaking News — Friday Night Tornadoes." This entry will advance to the National Murrow Award competition later this year.

NAAJ awards 'Big Ag U' series third place

Illinois Public Media Ag reporter Dana Cronin was a collaborator on a news series that earned third in the special projects category of the North American Agricultural Journalists Writing Awards. The series, Big Ag U, was created with journalists at Harvest Public Media and Investigate Midwest, focusing on corporate influence at public universities across the Midwest.

The judges noted: "Shrinking public funding of ag (and other) higher education is a given ... but the reasonable outcome of its replacement by corporate sources raises questions that I haven't seen examined on more than a local or regional basis. By pulling together their analyses of what's happening on a group of first-tier research institutions, the writer(s) paint a picture that should concern policy makers in both education and the ag industry."

Garibay wins second in audio championship

Carolina Garibay, a former senior producer for Illinois Student Newsroom who graduated this year, placed second in the Hearst National Audio Championship, an on-site competition to vie for the title of top audio journalist in the country. She received a $7,500 award. The competition is hosted by the William Randolph Hearst Foundation's Journalism Awards Program

This year, one audio competition was held in the news and features category. The top winners from those 67 entrants qualified to participate in the Hearst National Audio Championship in San Francisco in May. The audio finalists were assigned a story about inflation and the cost of living in the San Francisco Bay area.

Malkin to cover politics, democracy

Harrison Malkin has joined Illinois Public Media's newsroom as a democracy and politics reporter who will cover elections across the state, particularly in the 13th and 15th Congressional Districts. Later this year he will track the gubernatorial race.

"I want to highlight the experiences and voices of voters in Illinois, and I'm keen on covering issues surrounding voter suppression and economic inequality," Malkin said.

Before landing in Champaign-Urbana, Malkin said he was most excited about embedding himself in the local and statewide political scene, traveling often, and learning as much as he could to report best on the issues plaguing voters. "I also couldn't wait to work with an NPR member station to produce radio content. I hadn't worked in radio since my time with WICB News as an undergraduate," he said.

"My grandma was an avid supporter of NPR and PBS, so I grew up listening to local programming from my home stations, WBGO and WNYC," Malkin said. "The Brian Lehrer Show was a constant, and my favorite nationally aired show was (and still is) Fresh Air with Terry Gross. There's not much like public media in this country — from the diverse and thoughtful political coverage to the extensive cultural programming."

The New Jersey native studied politics as an undergraduate at Ithaca College in upstate New York and also studied abroad in Buenos Aires, Argentina. He has been a reporter since he was 15 years old, covering topics from politics to food to music for publications such as Tablet Magazine, CounterPunch, Sports Illustrated, and Mashable.

Simeziane joins communications team

Sarah Simeziane joined the Illinois Public Media team in February as a marketing and membership associate. Her main responsibilities include managing Illinois Public Media's social media across Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter and writing our weekly Aircheck email newsletter.

"I keep an eye on programming that is coming up as well as news that will be of interest to our listeners/viewers," Simeziane said. "I also try to find fun and interesting ways to show some of the behind-the-scenes action at IPM to provide a glimpse into all the creative work from this wonderful team."

Simeziane works remotely from Montana and lives about an hour north of Yellowstone National Park, but she lived in Champaign-Urbana until 2019. Her self-proclaimed "patchwork career" has included more than 20 years of teaching (she still teaches public speaking for Parkland College online); launching, managing, and promoting the Tuesday afternoon farmers market in Champaign; and recently establishing her own communication consulting firm. She earned graduate degrees in linguistics and communication at the University of Illinois.

She also was a guest on The 21st twice to talk about food insecurity and how farmers markets are helping to solve the problem.

"I appreciate how (public radio) news coverage strikes a good balance between depth and breadth of coverage," she said. "My favorite programs now are Wait Wait ... Don't Tell Me! and It's Been a Minute, but while it was on the air, Car Talk was probably my all-time favorite."

Early memories include watching Sesame Street and Mister Rogers Neighborhood on WILL-TV.

She is an enthusiastic amateur wildlife photographer and also loves doing pet photography.
