July 2023 Vol. XLIX, No. 1

At the end of May, I attended two events that really put in perspective how fortunate I am to work at Illinois Public Media on the campus of the University of Illinois.

The first was a PBS NewsHour live event on the university Quad — “Feeding a Heating Planet,” the final edition in their series “Tipping Point: Agriculture on the Brink.” As a longtime veteran in public media, there is really nothing like watching a live, nationally streamed event in person. And it was really gratifying to hear well-known science correspondent Miles O'Brien mention what a beautiful setting the Urbana Quad made for their live event. (That's me and Miles at the event above.)

The interviews included in the program — many of which were pre-taped in our Collins TV Studio — featured several prominent university professors and some area farmers. It was no accident the series ended at the University of Illinois, as it is one of the foremost agricultural and science institutions in the country. It reminded me once again of the importance of IPM's long-term commitment to agricultural and science reporting. You can watch the special at go.illinois.edu/feeding-a-heating-planet or by scanning the QR Code below.

The second event was the official launch of our Mullally Circle. You can read about it on page 20, but I just wanted to say how amazing it is to have a group of donors who are investing in the future of public media in our community. We are incredibly lucky to have such a dedicated local donor base that is passionate about ensuring we continue to have a strong voice, both locally and nationally, for many years to come.

Moss Bresnahan, Executive Director

Christine Hatfield and Jose Zepeda work in the studio as the producers of 'The 21st,' which adds a Friday show July 14.

'The 21st' expands with week-in-review show

Illinois Public Media's statewide radio talk show, The 21st, will move to five days a week on July 14, bringing more news, culture, and stories to its fans across Illinois.

The show — now airing on seven public radio stations — has focused on Illinois people and topics for seven years. It airs Monday-Thursday at 11 am. Adding Friday will allow the show to offer a week-in-review program. The program also will be rebroadcast weeknights at 6 pm on WILL-FM and then again at 7 pm on WILL-AM.

Brian Mackey

"Personally, I can't get enough of the week-in-review format," said Brian Mackey, who has hosted the show for three years. "In my experience, most people are too busy to follow every twist and turn in the news. We hope to provide a recap of Illinois' major stories and add the context for why the news is worth knowing."

"We've long wanted to return The 21st to a five-day format," said Reginald Hardwick, Illinois Public Media director of news and public affairs. "On Fridays, listeners will hear from public media reporters about the big stories from around the state. In addition, we'll talk with reporters at the Illinois Statehouse."

And lastly, we'll leave listeners with a taste of Illinois culture by featuring interviews with artists, musicians, and culinary leaders from outside Chicago."

"We strive to be a place where Illinoisans come together to be informed, connect with each other, and seek understanding," Mackey said. "This is a vibrant and varied state, and we want that represented in our mix of conversations — on politics, government, history, identity, science, culture, food, music, books, and the arts."

Mackey is quick to point out that those connections are made stronger because of contributions by listeners who call in, respond to text messages, and send emails and voicemails.

Getting from a story idea to a live interview show takes teamwork.

"Once we have settled on a topic, producers Christine Hatfield, Jose Zepeda, and I begin the work to turn topics and stories into radio conversations," Mackey said. "That includes researching and reporting, inviting guests, outlining a structure for the program, and writing lists of potential questions. We're often aided in this process by University of Illinois interns, and Reginald Hardwick provides guidance."

Technical direction is provided by Jason Croft and Steve Morck, who edit and mix clips, run the soundboard, and troubleshoot the unexpected problems that come up as part of live radio.

"Through everything we do, we work to live up to public media's imperative to talk with people, not just about them," Mackey said.

THE DOCTOR IS BACK!

Is there a dyspeptic doctor in the house? There will be when Doc Martin returns in season 9 at 9 pm Thursday, July 6 (with a repeat at 4 pm Sundays).

For those new to the series, successful surgeon Dr. Martin Ellingham abruptly leaves his London practice to become a general practitioner in the sleepy fishing village of Portwenn, where he spent the holidays during his youth. But his luxury car and lavish wardrobe immediately rub the locals the wrong way, and once they get a load of his abrasive attitude and lack of bedside manner, he quickly alienates most of the townsfolk.

In season 9, Martin Clunes is back as the titular Doc Martin, and all regular members of the cast reprise their roles. Martin's career hangs in the balance as he faces scrutiny from the General Medical Council following complaints about his approach to patients. His wife, Louisa Ellingham, has resigned from her job as headmistress at the local school to pursue a new career in child counseling. In a first for the series, season 9 will be available to stream on WILL Passport.

And don't miss another popular BBC comedy when Chef! airs Saturdays at 10:30 pm beginning July 8 (right after Mr. Bean). Lenny Henry is top chef Gareth Blackstock, whose personal and management skills do not match his culinary abilities.

Celebrating America's Independence Day!

This time-honored 43 year-tradition puts viewers front and center for America's biggest birthday party with the greatest display of fireworks anywhere in the nation lighting up the iconic D.C. skyline. A Capitol Fourth celebrates our country's 247th birthday with musical performances by top stars from pop, country, R&B, classical, and Broadway, featuring the National Symphony Orchestra under the direction of premier pops conductor Jack Everly. A Capitol Fourth airs at 7 pm Tuesday, July 4, and again at 8:32 pm.

SUMMER OF MYSTERY CONTINUES

New drama features compelling true crime

A Confession is a suspenseful contemporary drama that centers on the thought-provoking true crime story of an investigator determined to bring a killer to justice. In 2011, after a night out with friends, 22-year-old Sian O'Callaghan disappears. When she is reported missing, Detective Superintendent Steve Fulcher (Martin Freeman) begins to investigate. Believing she might still be alive, he initiates a full-scale search operation. The six-part series begins at 10 pm Thursday, July 13.

'D.I. Ray' confronts cultural stereotypes

D.I. Ray features Detective Inspector Rachita Ray, a British-Asian policewoman new to homicide. After she's told a murder is a "culturally specific homicide," she suspects she was chosen for her ethnicity rather than her ability. The case reveals hidden biases in the department and a keen urgency to wrap up the case. D.I. Ray goes on a journey that sees her uncover a complex web of deceit within organized crime, while exposing her own wounds that she's spent a lifetime ignoring. The four-part drama premieres at 9 pm Sunday, July 9.

'Grantchester' season 8 premieres

Grantchester returns at 8 pm Sunday, July 9, with season 8. In the Cambridgeshire village of Grantchester in the 1950s, gruff, down-to-earth police inspector Geordie Keating's methodical approach to police work complements the intuitive techniques of Rev. Will Davenport. In season 8, Will is happily married to Bonnie, and Geordie and Cathy are content in their rebuilt relationship. An accident and shocking announcements threaten the stability and happiness found by Grantchester's vicar and police detective duo.

New season, new owner for 'Seaside Hotel'

The 7th season of Seaside Hotel is set in 1940. The hotel by the North Sea dunes opens for a new season with Amanda as the new owner. Denmark was recently invaded and previous years' guests come to the hotel partly to get away from the Germans. Each character is dealing with problems from the German occupation. Premiering at 11 pm Sunday, July 9, this six-part series comes from Walter Presents, in Danish with English subtitles.

Host Shane Campbell-Staton stands between aquariums that hold almost 10,000 African clawed frogs at the National Xenopus Resource. This frog has become the most abundant amphibian on the planet because of its strange role in our lives: It was the first reliable pregnancy test.

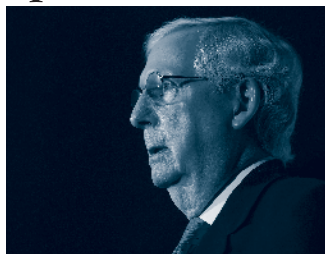

Understanding the impact of humans

A new six-part documentary series hosted by biologist and Princeton University professor Shane Campbell-Staton, embarks on a journey to understand all the ways humans have transformed the planet. Part science series and part travel show, Human Footprint takes viewers from farms to restaurants, from a high-tech lab to a sweltering street market, from pristine rain forests to the sewers of New York City. Stories of science, history, and culture reveal the complicated, conflicted, and remarkable species that is Homo sapiens. The series begins at 8 pm Wednesday, July 5. It is not a “doom and gloom” tale of human villainy. Instead, it is an honest reckoning with our vast footprint and our species’ singular history of transforming the planet.

A look at McConnell’s political power

The next Frontline explores how Republican Sen. Mitch McConnell helped transform the Supreme Court and U.S. politics. Amid scrutiny of the high court and a power struggle in the GOP, McConnell, the GOP and the Court investigates McConnell’s rise, his role in pushing the judiciary to the right, and America’s polarized democracy. The film airs at 8 pm Tuesday, July 11.

American stories celebrate the South

A new documentary series explores Southern identity through the eyes of contemporary creatives. Southern Storytellers premieres at 8 pm Tuesday, July 18. The three-part miniseries follows some of the region’s most compelling and influential contemporary creators to the places they call home — the communities that fertilize the stories they tell in books, songs, poems, plays, and on screens large and small. Southern Storytellers traverses the South, from the mountains of Appalachia to the Gulf of Mexico, with a vivid patchwork of diverse American stories that celebrate the resilience and joy of Southern people. Among the featured creatives are some of the most recognized storytellers from the worlds of literature, music, television, and film.

Season 36: 'POV' features bold storytelling

No topic is off limits for the independent filmmakers whose documentaries air on POV. For its 36th season, the award-winning series presents 16 feature documentaries with themes devoted to caregiving, transnationalism, activism, childhood aspirations, accessibility, and intergenerational relationships. The series' commitment to provide a platform to showcase bold forms of nonfiction storytelling by filmmakers with diverse voices and perspectives brings audiences unforgettable protagonists with unique points of view.

Following the premiere in June with After Sherman (June 28), season 36 continues with five new films this month. Airing Mondays at 9 pm on WILL-TV, the films also are available to stream through the POV website and the PBS App.

"One of the best things about this season is we are not shying away from bold stories," said Erika Dilday, executive producer of POV. "I believe good documentary filmmaking should be about subjects and topics that often make us feel a little uncomfortable and challenge how we see our world,"

Each POV film comes with free resource materials to support those who want to bring the transformative power of documentary into communities, classrooms, and libraries. Explore discussion guides, reading lists, and lesson plans at www.pbs.org/pov/.

Eat Your Catfish (7/24) is filmed from the perspective of a woman with ALS. It is an unvarnished account of a family's bond and of a woman's will to live. With both empathy and gallows humor, it probes the breakdown of a family pushed to its tipping point.

A Story of Bones (July 3) chronicles efforts to reclaim a burial site containing thousands of formerly enslaved Africans on the famed British territory, St. Helena.

PRAIRIE & FIRE

WILL's monthly magazine show Prairie Fire features more central Illinois stories at 7:30 pm Thursday, July 13, with host Sarah Edwards. Scheduled features this month (subject to change):

- Illinois songwriter, guitarist, and folklorist Chris Vallillo (top left) will mark our first in-studio performance of the new Prairie Fire. Vallillo weaves original, contemporary, and traditional songs and theatrical narratives into a compelling, entertaining portrait of the history and lifestyle of the Midwest. Vallillo appeared in the Emmy-winning Illinois Public Media documentary Illinois Country.
- Tinisha Spain brings us the story of Anthony Becker (bottom left), an avid gardener who was paralyzed in a car accident. Becker uses his ingenuity to create custom tools for the wheelchair-bound so they can continue to pursue their gardening passion.
- Sarah Edwards speaks with former Prairie Fire host Alison Davis about the highlights of her tenure hosting the show. Davis will share some of her favorite characters and funny road stories. We'll feature one of Alison's favorite short Prairie Fire documentaries in full.

Centenary coverage wins regional Murrow award

Illinois Public Media has won a Regional Edward R. Murrow Award for Jim Meadows' coverage of WILL-AM's 100th anniversary.

"We're thrilled to be honored with a Regional Edward R. Murrow award this year — widely considered the most prestigious award given in local journalism," said Moss Bresnahan, executive director of Illinois Public Media. "Jim's work brought to life the incredible characters, events, and trends that have shaped Illinois' past and present — all while celebrating WILL's 100th anniversary."

The Radio Television Digital News Association honored Illinois Public Media with a Best News Series regional award (Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Ohio) for excellence in radio in a small market. The series is a collection of four features exploring the history, impacts, and programs of interest throughout WILL-AM's first century — all written and produced by Meadows. (See box below.)

"Jim deserves many accolades for this honor," said Reginald Hardwick, director of news and public affairs for Illinois Public Media. "He spent more than a year digging through archives, many of which have not been digitized, to find jewels from WILL-AM's past."

During Meadows' reporting, he spoke with several present and former staff members, worked with archivist and former Focus 580 producer Jack Brighton, and spent countless hours digging through the University of Illinois archives to produce features celebrating the oldest component of Illinois Public Media as the organization marked 100 years of broadcasting in April 2022.

"It was very gratifying to have these features, which took a lot of work and were of great interest to me personally, be appreciated by judges from elsewhere in the country," Meadows said. "I wanted to tell our audience about WILL's place in the earliest days of radio broadcasting, and share some of the programs that the station produced that listeners have really valued."

"Hearing the voice of poet Langston Hughes was a real treat. It was also a pleasure listening to Roger Cooper talk about his legacy at WILL," Hardwick said. "It was a privilege to share these stories with our listeners and an honor to be recognized with this regional Murrow award from news directors around the nation."

For Meadows, his favorite was the story of WILL's early days. "It presents WILL's role at the very beginning of radio broadcasting, when people were just thinking of radio as something for reaching a mass audience, not just as a telephone without wires. The feature also touches on WILL's important but generally unheralded role in shaping what was then called educational broadcasting on a national basis."

"WILL at 100: A Century of Making Waves" is under consideration for a national Murrow Award. To explore all of our centennial coverage during 2022, visit will.illinois.edu/will100.

Season 7: 'She Said' podcast premieres July 7

More compelling stories of everyday women will be featured in season 7 of The She Said Project Podcast beginning July 7, with 10 new episodes airing each Friday at will.illinois.edu/shesaid or wherever you get your podcasts.

Hosts Jenette Jurczyk, She Said national director, and co-founder Kerry Rossow return to the WILL studios to chat with women who have bravely taken the microphone on the She Said stage, which provides a storytelling platform that empowers women. Listeners of the podcast hear each guest's performance from the show and learn first-hand the story behind the story. Season 7 features women from That's What She Said shows in Champaign-Urbana, Bloomington-Normal, and new communities such as Danville and Columbia, Missouri.

Guests include Jaya Kolisetty with "What Are You?" (Champaign), Elizabeth (Feathers) MacPhail with "According to the 'Shoulds'" (Bloomington), and Ja'Naea Modest (aka DJ Silkee) with "Live Your Life" (Danville).

"We always get a good laugh, sometimes a good cry, and even deep discussions as we learn about topics that are important to our guests," Jurczyk said. "We sometimes hear from the women months later, or sometimes years after appearing onstage in That's What She Said.

"We are amazed at how much being in the show has impacted them personally and continues to impact their community. Some women have told us how the show changed their life, such as connecting with long-lost family, or that telling their story helped heal deep wounds and trauma."

The That's What She Said stage shows began in Champaign in 2013 and the venues continue to expand with 2023 shows hosted in Bloomington-Normal, Champaign-Urbana, Danville, Peoria, and St. Clair County, Illinois; Indianapolis; and St. Louis and Columbia, Missouri. More shows are in development, including 2024 shows in Decatur and Naperville, Illinois; and Charlotte, North Carolina.

Illinois Public Media has partnered with The She Said Project since 2019. The podcast provides another platform for the women who have shared their stories in live presentations through That's What She Said.

From left, hosts Kerry Rossow and Jenette Jurczyk host "The She Said Project Podcast" that is taped in the WILL studios. Rossow and Jurczyk chat with women who have bravely taken the microphone on the She Said stage.

Psychological thriller featured July 12

Arthouse EXPERIENCE

The next feature in the Arthouse Experience Film Series is a dreamlike psychological thriller by director David Lynch.

The R-rated film, "Mulholland Drive" (2001), follows an aspiring actress (Naomi Watts) who befriends a woman (Laura Elena Harding) suffering from amnesia after a car accident.

The film will be shown at 7 pm Wednesday, July 12, at the Virginia Theatre, 203 W. Park Ave., Champaign.

Hosted by Illinois Public Media and the Champaign Park District, films in the series are limited-release, high-quality titles that have captured the imagination of movie lovers. Films will be followed by a post-show discussion and in some cases an on-stage talk by directors, producers, and other special guests.

General admission tickets ($7 per film) are available at the Virginia Theatre box office, online at thevirginia.org, or charge by phone at 217-356-9063.

Plantan joins video production team

As a production assistant at Illinois Public Media, Taylor Plantan has a hand in everything that relates to video production or studio events at WILL-TV.

She has worked part-time for IPM since November 2021 (commuting weekly from Chicago) and moved to the area when her position became permanent in February.

“Every week, I work on Mid-American Gardener as an assistant producer, helping to put the show together from start to finish,” Plantan said. “In bringing Prairie Fire back to WILL, I have assisted Sarah Edwards and DJ Roach in pitching segment ideas, interviewing subjects, and editing the program. We work hard to come up with new ways to bring audiences extra content on various platforms.”

“We are thrilled to have Taylor join the IPM production team,” said Lillie Duncanson, director of broadcast operations. “From day one, she has brought an energy to the station, as well as a diverse toolbox of strengths and experience, including editing, web design, copywriting, and research.”

Plantan earned a B.A. in English Literature from Illinois Wesleyan University in 2020. In trying to narrow down her career interests, she connected with fellow alumni, including Sarah Edwards, senior producer and director of Prairie Fire. “The rest is history,” Plantan said.

“As cliché as it is, I just really love storytelling,” she said. “I am grateful that every day brings new challenges, characters, and great fun. I have the privilege of working with a fabulous creative team, and I love that I’m always learning. After all, that’s what PBS is all about, right?”

Growing up she and her twin brother loved Arthur, Dragon Tales, Sesame Street, and Bill Nye the Science Guy. As an adult, she loves PBS for its documentary films and programs.

She is proud to contribute to public media. “For me at WILL, this means crafting content and stories that are engaging and reflective,” she said.

Outside of work, she says she is a “jack-of-all-trades and a master of none, who is always looking for new experiences.” That could include a new restaurant, baking a new recipe, a DIY project, drawing, or traveling.

Reception honors legacy circle donors

A small reception was held in the Collins TV Studio on May 31, to recognize Illinois Public Media’s Donald P. Mullally Legacy Circle donors. These committed donors are helping to secure quality public radio and TV programming for generations to come by leaving a gift through their will, trust, or other estate plan.

The legacy circle is named for Illinois Public Media’s former general manager, who, as the NPR board chair, led a restructuring of the public radio system and pulled NPR out of financial crisis. IPM’s executive director Moss Bresnahan honored Mullally’s enormous impact on public broadcasting in his opening remarks and thanked the members of the Mullally Legacy Circle for their dedication to the future of the WILL stations.

“The launch event provided us with a great opportunity to learn more about our Mullally Circle members’ strong connections to the WILL stations,” Bresnahan said. “It is inspiring to know so many community members have made long-term investments in the future of news, arts, music, and education in central Illinois.”
